It's fine, go ahead. Congratulations to your student on the invitation to publish.

Best regards, E.

Hi Elizabeth,

Thank you so much for the prompt reply –

This is the image we were hoping to use:

Knowing Lenora the way that I do, she would say go ahead. Simply give her credit.

To be clear, can you show me which one? E.

Message Body:

Hello,

My name is Keith Feigenson, and I am a professor at Albright College in Pennsylvania. One of my students conducted a survey research project and linked her participants to an image by one of your contributors, Lenora Larson (<http://nationalmothweek.org/2016/08/12/6th-annual-mothing-at-long-lips-farm-kansas-usa-guest-post-by-lenora-larson/>). She recently received word that she would be able to publish her study as an article in an undergraduate psychology publication.

We were wondering what it would take to be able to have permission to reprint the image of Ms. Larson in this publication?

Thank you very much for your time - I can be reached at either my email or my phone number, 609-439-7431.

Best

Keith Feigenson
